

Hello New York!

1 Reading

Read the introduction and part of the diary of an immigrant called Helen Meinwald who arrived in New York in 1920 when she was 14 years old. Have you ever been on a long boat journey like Helen?

Ellis Island is in New York harbour, near the Statue of Liberty. Between 1892 and 1954 more than 12 million immigrants entered the United States through Ellis Island. Usually immigrants stayed on Ellis Island for a few hours. They answered some questions and a doctor made sure they were healthy. But sometimes immigrants stayed on the island for up to a year if they were ill.

6th March

We said goodbye to Poland today and to all my friends and family. My grandparents can't come with us. I feel very sad.

9th March

It is my third day on the boat now and it's horrid. Mother, Father, Lawrence and I share a bunk bed in the bottom of the boat. It's very crowded and I can't sleep. Why does everybody want to go to the USA! Mother is worried because we don't have much food left.

12th March

I felt very seasick today. I asked father to throw me over the side of the boat into the sea. The sea was very rough and Lawrence was frightened. I feel terrible.

14th March

Today I feel much better. Father says we are nearly there. He talked to me about our new lives in America. Aunt and uncle Cohen live there already. They have a house with two bedrooms. I am very excited about living in America.

17th March

Today was a great day. Mother was walking on deck when she saw the Statue of Liberty. She ran to find Lawrence and me. It was like a party on the boat. Everybody was singing and dancing - we were all delighted to be in America.

20th March

My aunt and uncle came to take us to their home. They were very pleased to see us. I feel very free and happy. We stayed on Ellis Island for three days, but now the awful journey is over and my new life is about to start.
